Weirton Christian Center: Blessings in the New School Year

by Kim Weaver, director, Weirton Christian Center

The Weirton Christian Center is 99 years old! We have been serving the children of Weirton since a Baptist missionary started it all in 1917. To this day, we could not do what we do without the wonderful support of our mission minded and generous Baptist family. You are making a huge difference on a day-to-day basis.

With the start of this school year, we have been blessed to add Holley Faulkner to our team. He has just moved from Fairmont to start his pastorate at Weirton Heights Memorial Baptist Church (Panhandle). We are excited to have him tutoring, mentoring and loving our children. He will be a blessing in so many ways.

We offer preschool and afterschool lunches and snacks as well as lots of great afterschool programs. We provide homework help; computer access; school supplies and special programs, which include visiting geriatric centers; free music lessons in voice, piano and guitar; and the Signs of Hope performance group. Starting this year, we have partnered with a local dance company willing to let our children join with scholarships. We provide transportation to and from events and lessons. For the first time, we have implemented a registration fee to help us cover some expenses, but provide scholarships to anyone unable to pay it.

We are still collecting quarters for grades for children's daily attendance, homework completion and report cards. We appreciate your collections throughout the year that make it possible for us to encourage and reward our children who may receive no other recognition for their efforts. We truly value all our inkind support as well, such as paper products, school supplies, snacks, hats, gloves and so much more.

We are so thankful for our West Virginia Baptist workers. This year we had a group of amazing young people from New Hope Baptist Church (Guyandotte) come to the center, led by Lee Boso, family life pastor at New Hope Baptist Church.

They worked around our place fixing, planting, sorting and creating hygiene kits for camp, organizing donations in the basement and painting every room in the main building. And their creativity was amazing; they had such an awesome spirit of love and helpfulness. What a blessing. We welcome any group who would like to take a mission trip to help out with tasks at the center or work with our children. Once the new building goes up there will be lots of painting and finishing work to do.

Speaking of the new building ... here is a quick update on where our project stands. From West Virginia Baptist churches and members, we have received $51,018 out of our total projected request of $150,000 - leaving a balance of $98,982 we hope to receive from our Baptist family. (This includes purchased donor bricks.) American Baptist Women's Ministries have raised over $9,000 of their $12,000 goal for the new preschool. Foundations and trusts total $145,000 and the One Great Hour of Sharing offering will provide $30,000 for construction of the kitchen. Corporate and individual donations total $1,100. Our matching grant from the Christian Fellowship Foundation will provide $300,000 once the rest is collected. Also being covered is LED dimmable lighting and extra insulation for better energy efficiency and sustainability. Based on receiving our projected funds, we are only $98,000 away from being totally funded for the $735,000 building project ... and there are still grant possibilities.

Our plan is to break ground by May 2017 so we will not have to return any of the foundation dollars due to not being able to spend the funds within the year. Once in the new building we will be equipped to apply for 21st Century learning funding to cover personnel and program expenses as well as feeding funds through our USDA approved kitchen.

Thanks to all who have worked so hard to find ways for your church to help support this building project and all those generous individuals who are helping make our vision a reality.

Youth from New Baptist Church (Guyandotte), along with their family life pastor, Lee Boso visited Weirton Christian Center to help out with many tasks.

The mission of the West Virginia Baptist Convention is to empower local churches to be Christ honoring communities of faith and to help them fulfill their mission by enabling them to do together what they cannot do alone.

Don't Forget to Say Thank You

This season of the year is filled with events that move us from summer to fall - planning holiday events, beginning another school year, church activities resuming after a summer hiatus - and trying to understand how quickly the calendar seems to advance. Our annual gathering in October marks a special time of change as new leadership marches in and leadership of the previous term says farewell. It allows us to celebrate the past year, while looking at the challenges ahead in the Mountain State. Thank God for His faithfulness and the committed churches in our Baptist family.

The massive flooding in our state this past June challenged us physically, emotionally, financially and spiritually. Facing the extensive loss in many of our communities of homes, businesses, schools and churches has impacted many to the breaking point of their endurance. We will continue the hard work of rebuilding communities and finding ways to encourage people to find HOPE. Thank God for workers and caregivers. The response from our Baptists in West Virginia and around our nation has been heartwarming.

Now, how can we be a Beacon of Hope in the lives of those who lost just about everything? A beacon is focused light over a large area bringing attention to something significant. Be a beacon by:

- Giving a day of labor to help rebuild in the communities affected by the flood. There is a list of places looking for helping hands and encouraging words. Contact the West Virginia Baptist Convention office (304.422.6449) for more information.

- Give to the One Great Hour of Sharing with the money

earmarked for West Virginia Flood Relief.

- Pray for the people and churches in the flood-ravaged areas.

Many times, we forget what we do here echoes in eternity. In your churches, in your women's groups, in your men's groups, in your youth groups, bring attention to the needs of those in the flooded areas. Let the world see Jesus in You!

It is no accident that months ago as we developed themes for our state convention for the coming years, Beacon of Hope was chosen for this year. God knows what He is doing and He knew we would need this as our focus. Life-changing events can leave folks feeling overwhelmed, whether they are directly or indirectly affected. In the church, the emotional, physical, relational and spiritual aftershocks emerge over days, weeks and months. Believers are caregivers and we should be available to family and friends to find ways to get a handle on life, with the Lord's help.

There are informational resources available to you at the West Virginia Baptist Convention office that can be useful in coping with trauma and helping others deal with crisis. A copy of that information was included in the last pastors' mailing.

Life can and will change in unexpected ways. Life is hard work, yet we are reminded by Paul in Galatians to: "Let us not grow weary in our well-doing."

And let us remember to express our appreciation to our pastors as we celebrate Pastors' Appreciation Month in October! A card, a cake, a hug or a handshake says a great deal to those who serve you and the Lord. Genesis 12:2 reminds us we are "blessed to be a blessing."

We are all blessed - now be a blessing!

Making Special Relationships

Parchment Valley Conference Center experienced a great summer in 2016: lives making first-time decisions for Jesus to be their Lord and Savior, groups gathering for fellowship, recreation and Christian education. We are grateful to West Virginia Baptist Convention churches and American Baptist Women's Ministries, alongside American Baptist Men for their support. Without their vision, faith and hard work we would be just another conference center.

Several weeks ago, Parchment Valley lost all of its drinking water, nearly 40,000 gallons, while a large wedding was underway. For two days, we searched for the leak, and while walking the creekline by the campground with Matt Ash and Charlie Swisher, and between phone calls to Charles Plemons we discovered the leak where the main water line had separated. The irony of the repair was also a great blessing. As the American Baptist Men reached out to assist communities and churches stricken from the flood, we had Hurricane Baptist Church (Good Hope) on the survey list to evaluate their heating and cooling unit for replacement. Mike Kelley, the senior deacon at Hurricane Baptist Church, heard of our water line break situation and sent an excavator to us at no charge. Tom Dale and John Vannoy unearthed the damaged line, but needed specific components to complete the repair. I called the City of Ripley and they donated the parts to Parchment Valley for the urgent repair. God is good, all the time.

Later that same week, while mowing the Grapevine Chapel area in preparation for the upcoming Golden'eers Fall Retreat, I received a call from Tim Loudermilk, the son of the late Don Loudermilk. Tim said his mother, Kay, wanted to come to Parchment Valley and experience dad's work. Upon their arrival to Parchment Valley Conference Center, we all got in the golf cart, toured the grounds and spent time talking about Don and his love for this place. We stopped along the Grapevine Chapel path and took in the beauty of the day. I picked some wild flowers and handed them to Kay and told her these are in memory of Don. Kay hugged me and said, "When Don was volunteering here he would always tell me this place brought him one step closer to heaven."

Times and people will change, but the relationships we make this side of heaven are special. Thank you for supporting the ministry of Parchment Valley Conference Center and contributing to the Don Loudermilk Society, which allows Parchment Valley to be the well kept and viable place God intended it to be.

Make every day a little brighter for those God places in your path.

Hispanic Ministries: Loving, Caring and Praying - Amor, el Cuidado y la Oración

*"What a huge harvest!" he said to his disciples.
"How few workers! On your knees and pray for harvest hands!"
- Matthew 9:36-38 (The Message)*

Six years ago, a handful of followers of Jesus gathered in Gilberto and Trinidad Valentin's living room in their second-floor apartment in Moorefield. The purpose of the meeting was to name the congregation they had started with the support of the Eastern Baptist Association and the West Virginia Baptist Convention. As they sorted through options, Lucrecia, a Guatemalan lady, timidly suggested, "What about light and life? After all, Jesus came to give us His light and His life and that's what we want for the Hispanic community in Moorefield." Her suggestion hit the nail on the head and everyone in the room silently nodded in agreement. They named the church "Iglesia Bautista Comunidad Luz y Vida."

Comunidad Luz y Vida reaches out to the Hispanic community residing in the town of Moorefield. Throughout these years, God has used them to bless and change lives. They have been through ups and downs, but the One who called this church into being has been faithful. As a result of the partnership between the West Virginia Baptist Convention and the Puerto Rican Baptist Churches, last year Luis Díaz arrived to lead and pastor this congregation after being commissioned by Iglesia Bautista de Mamey as a volunteer missionary. Following a fruitful year of ministry, Luis returned home to finish his studies and to care for his ailing mother.

However, before Luis' departure, God was already at work behind the scenes preparing the person who would continue His ministry. In November 2015, the pastor of Iglesia Bautista de Mamey, Alberto Díaz, asked Obed Siberón to lead a mission trip for the church. Obed began to pray for guidance, "Where do you want us to go God?" Obed remembered his friend, Luis Díaz, was serving in Moorefield and he wanted to support his ministry. Obed says, "When I told pastor Alberto the mission trip would be to Moorefield, he grinned because he recalled an invitation Juan Aragón made to him and the church to come to West Virginia." Obed continues, "I was surprised and joyful because I understood this was part of God's plan."

Obed Siberón, preaching in his Puerto Rican church

"What I didn't know at that time," says Obed, "was God was preparing me to be the pastor for Luz y Vida. Even before coming, God laid upon my heart a burden to love, care and pray for this congregation. And here I am now leading it!" Obed invites us to love, care and pray for this Hispanic Ministry. "Loving, caring and praying for us will help in the process to fulfill God's will and to accomplish His mission," he adds.

Over the summer, a mission team from Iglesia Bautista de Mamey carried out several outreach projects with Comunidad Luz y Vida. At the Vacation Bible School, four children gave their lives to Jesus Christ. The church and the mission team held a farewell service to celebrate Luis Díaz and an installation service was also held in which they prayed and anointed Obed for the ministry God called him to do in West Virginia.

Obed holds a bachelor's degree in Christian Education from the Universidad Teológica del Caribe. During his university studies, he served as a campus pastor. In his home church, he was a member of the worship team and director of Vacation Bible School. In addition, Obed has been on mission trips to Bolivia and Honduras. He is passionate about leading people to meet and worship Jesus Christ.

Thank you for your prayers and financial support as we are a beacon of hope to the Hispanic community living in the mountain state!

May God continue to bless you!

The mission team from Iglesia Bautista de Mamey

Staying Connected

Technology is wonderful, when it works! You know what I mean - we get used to having working technology at our disposal and very often we take it for granted. We are a society that likes to be connected. We have our 24-hour cable news; we have internet; cell phones and more. We love to be connected.

I was watching a group of people at a restaurant table recently and every one of them had their heads down engaged in their phones. They were so into being connected they failed to connect with each other.

Being connected is important. In my office we are having some internet issues. All this week I have not had internet available at my desk. Talk about inconvenience! I could not send or receive email, check the web or otherwise engage the outside world.

It is when these things are not available that one gains a new appreciation for them, and I realize I typically take them for granted. The same can be said of our relationship with God. Because we know God is always there, we often take our relationship with God for granted. We neglect our time with God - we get accustomed to the convenience of God always being there that we fail to nurture and deepen the relationship.

We also do this with our families and friends. How often have you sat in the same room or at the same table with a loved one and completely ignored them? How many times have you spent the evening with someone and really never talked with them?

Staying connected is vital to any relationship. Staying connected requires an intentional effort on our part so we constantly nurture and deepen our relationships - with our loved ones and with God.

Our current model of mission support is built on relationships. Our missionaries are dependent upon us for prayer and financial support. They desire to be connected to us as we connect with them and the mission to which God has called them. Their work is often done in isolation, far from their family and friends. The more we do to stay connected with them the stronger the relationship will be.

Stay connected to God and to each other. Don't let the illusion of being connected through all the social media replace the real thing.

Discipleship Ministries

by Lisa Simmons, Director

Adult Discipleship: It is Beginning to Look a Lot Like Christmas

At this writing, the stores have not begun to put up the Christmas decorations, and have yet to begin the Christmas buying push, however for many churches now is the time to begin thinking about how this special holiday will be marked and celebrated. Choirs are beginning to choose music, children's workers are thinking about holiday activities and calendars have been marked according to the day schools are out for the Christmas break.

Here are some ideas for this Christmas that offer a different way to celebrate:

- Look for and purchase now a personal Advent guide to use at the beginning of the season. Simply Wait, by Pam Hawkins can be used by individuals and groups, and encourages the participants to reflect on anticipation, hope, patience and obedience.

- Have a Children's Christmas Shoppe for children who cannot purchase a gift for their parents at Christmas. Provide lots of small items (ask the whole church to help), invite children to come, provide a gift guide for each child (a person to help them shop) and a wrapping station. Include light snacks and a Biblical Christian movie.
- For families or individuals - go to your church one evening when no one else is there. Bring a single candle to light and sit in the silence, enjoying the peace of the season. (Be sure to check with the pastor first.)
- Get serious about doing a charitable act to honor Christ's birth. Church group activities are great, but what have you personally decided to do to honor Him during the Christmas season?
- Involve your family or youth group in helping decorate the house of a disabled or elderly person.

Now is the perfect time to try something new in your personal, family and church life that could add to the celebration of our Lord's birth.

Carr Chosen as Associate in Ministry of Fairmont State University Baptist Campus Ministries

The Baptist Campus Ministries (BCM) functions by changing lives to change the world through the work they do on individual campuses throughout the state of West Virginia. Through weekly Bible Study and small group times as well as activities both on and off campus, students are continuing to discover God and share His love with the people who surround them. This school year, BCM is seeing growth as it welcomes new leadership to the team and sees the opportunity available at a new campus.

Karla Carr, new associate in ministry of BCM at Fairmont State University.

Karla Carr is excited to have been selected as the associate in ministry for Fairmont State University Baptist Campus Ministries (BCM). She is married to Stanley Carr and they live in Barrackville with their three children, Gregory (18), Alex (14) and Shiloh (9).

She is a member of Willow Tree Baptist Church (Fairmont), where she is active in youth ministry, church leadership, music ministry and American Baptist Women's Ministries. Karla is a member of the Keith and Debbie Myers Mission Partnership Team (MPT) and assists them by submitting prayer needs to over 150 individuals and organizations all over the world while they serve in Mexico. Karla earned her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (BSBA) degree in accounting from Fairmont State in 2000, and works for ManTech International Corporation.

When asked about college ministry, Karla stated that community and having a core group of peers to encourage and support one another is vital. The faith community aspect of ministry is an important foundation to Karla.

While Karla is moving forward with the Fairmont students in the north, the southern part of the state is advancing with the opening of the new WVU Tech campus in Beckley. God is moving through Baptist Campus Ministries in exciting ways and He is evidencing that through the expansions of the ministry across the state.

Youth Ministry Planning Team: The Necessity of Submission

"I have been crucified with Christ and I no longer live but Christ lives in me."

Perhaps the most cohesive nature of the relationship between one's death to their own life and the new life found in Christ is the absolute necessity of submission. The submission to each must occur simultaneously or cannot occur at all. But what does this look like? How does this happen and what does one do after the occurrence?

Those are the questions the youth will seek to answer as they worship and learn together throughout the course of the 2016-2017 school year events. Using the theme "Dead I, New I, Ask Why," and the theme verse, Galatians 2:20 as guiding posts for the teaching discussions this year, the Youth Ministry Planning Team (YMPT) seeks to empower other students across the state through the understanding that once death to self occurs and life through Christ begins, life can be lived to its fullest extent. While the first two portions of the theme statement are referring to understanding what it means to die to oneself and find life in Christ, the final portion is for encouragement to share this new life with everyone around them.

As youth today struggle to share the life of Christ in the world dead from sin around them, the hope for them is to find the encouragement that only comes through existence in Christ as they study and learn together.

Continuing to Support Flood Relief in Southern West Virginia

by Casey Dawson
pastor, Sunrise Baptist Church (Parkersburg)

Life moves on after every tragedy. The West Virginia flood of 2016 is no different. But we cannot forget those who have been affected. There are still many people in desperate situations with mold filled houses, nowhere to stay and those who are living day to day. Yes, we have sporting events, children's events, church events, etc., but we still need to be in prayer, provide feet on the ground, and of course, financial support.

Thankfully, so much good has come from such a tragic event, including people volunteering who never have before. Donations have poured in, churches are crossing denominational boundaries and Jesus is ministering to those who otherwise would not be receptive. The Mid-Ohio Valley Disaster Relief Organization, a ministry of Sunrise Baptist Church (Parkersburg), has been able to continue sending people to be Jesus to those affected in Clendenin. We have secured three campers with the assistance of the Marietta Baptist Association to help three families in the Clendenin area. We have given washers and dryers, beds and countless other items to many families. We also helped to fill a U-Haul trailer that traveled to the Louisiana flood area to help those families.

There is still so much help needed - please don't stop supporting now! Let's continue to band together and show the rest of the world what West Virginia Christians can do in the name of Jesus. If you want to show your support, please visit our website at <http://movdisasterrelief.com> or contact Joe Stephens at 304.295.1093.

Flood Recovery at Clendenin First Baptist

Flood recovery at Clendenin First Baptist Church (Kanawha Valley) is a story of partnership and developing relationships. It is impossible to honor every person and organization that has spent countless hours working and/or donating time, goods and money to the recovery effort so we will focus on two of them.

Jimmy Hewitt (l), pastor of Charleston Baptist Temple and Joe Seese, pastor of Clendenin First Baptist Church

Charleston Baptist Temple (Kanawha Valley) and Clendenin First Baptist Church both have new pastors who arrived near the time of the flooding: Rev. Jim Hewitt and Rev. Joe Seese, respectively. Charleston Baptist Temple reached out to Clendenin First Baptist Church and has been most helpful in the recovery effort. They have donated supplies, money and hands-on work. These pastors have become partners in ministry as they begin their journey into new ministry settings. These are Baptist churches helping Baptist churches.

Immediately after the floods, Rev. Sandra Dorsainvil, of American Baptist Churches of Massachusetts, reached out to West Virginia Baptist Convention staff and asked what they could do. As so many others have done, they sent cleaning supplies and generous donations from their churches. Their hearts were touched by the images of families losing everything. In response, one of their churches sent children's shoes. These are Baptist regions helping Baptist regions.

Kingwood Baptist Assists with Flood Relief

Kingwood Baptist Church (Goshen) has been active in assisting with flood relief in Southern West Virginia. Church members have sent three truckloads of supplies to Greenbrier, Kanawha and Clay counties.

Kingwood Baptist Church member, Jordan Smith, is shown working on flood recovery in a Clendenin home.

In addition, the mission board donated $500 to United Way efforts in Greenbrier County. The American Baptist Women's Ministries of Kingwood Baptist Church matched the donation by donating $500 to flood relief in the Clendenin area.

Donation of work in the flooded area was given by Bob Maynard, Marlena Maynard and Jordan Smith. Guiding these volunteers in their initial efforts were Jonathan Turner, pastor of Shuck Memorial Baptist Church (Greenbrier-Raleigh), and his wife, Nikalea.

Portable Air Conditioners Provided in Richwood Area

by Linda Carpenter, Richwood First Baptist Church

Because of your gifts to the West Virginia Baptist Convention, Richwood First Baptist Church (Hopewell) has been able to distribute portable air conditioning units to two families in the Richwood area who were affected by the flooding that took place on June 23, 2016. Not only has God helped us to be a blessing, but one family has been attending our church services for the past four weeks after being ministered to after the flood. They are being touched by us being the outstretched arms of Jesus. We pray God will continue to let us minister alongside Him as we share the gospel with the people of the Richwood area.

His Love is Much Deeper

*by David Bush
pastor, Rainelle First Baptist Church (Hopewell)*

Flood relief has been a non-stop process since June 23, 2016. However, with great travesty comes great grace, and we at Rainelle First Baptist Church have had a front row seat to God's faithfulness. Countless churches have come to help and have made a profound impact on our community. We are deeply grateful for all the help our West Virginia Baptist family has been throughout this process. There are too many testimonies to share in this short excerpt, but one of my favorites has to do with receiving a truckload of lime from the Convention.

I received a call from Roger Adams, pastor, Clearview Fellowship Baptist Church (Greenbrier-Raleigh) that a truckload of lime was headed our way. So, I am preparing for maybe a trailer load when, all of a sudden, at nine in the morning up rolls a tractor trailer with a bed full of lime. I rush to call for help from Dana Gatewood, pastor, Summersville Baptist Church (Hopewell), who had been through the flood in 2003 at Rainelle First Baptist Church. He said to find as many people as we could and grab a camera. I set out to find a crew to come help unload, all the time praying God would provide the right amount. Out of nowhere, a member of Rainelle First Baptist Church, Adam Harmon, is operating a forklift. I run over and ask his boss if I could borrow him. The Lord always provides! This is just one picture of how God consistently and faithfully shows up in ways beyond our imagination.

Adam Harmon operates a forklift to retrieve lime from the trailer bed.

One of our deacons, George Brooks, said it best at a testimony night we had following the flood, "God filled the valley with water, but His love is much deeper."

Southwest Area Welcomes New Pastors

The Southwest Area of the West Virginia Baptist Convention has been blessed with the addition of some new ministers recently. Each are new to the convention, coming from other states.

Dr. Jeffrey A. Davenport is a native of Hansford, and is a graduate of WVU-Tech. His theological education was earned at Trinity Theological Seminary, Newburgh, Indiana.

He began his ministry at Hurricane First Baptist Church (Teays Valley) on August 28, 2016. He comes to this new ministry from Calvary Baptist Church, Covington, Kentucky, where he served for the past seven years.

Jeffrey has been married to Beth for 31 years. They are the parents of three adult children and have three grandchildren. We welcome Dr. Davenport and his family home.

Charleston Baptist Temple (Kanawha Valley) has also called a new pastor: Rev. Dr. Jim T. Hewitt, who most recently pastored Pocahontas Baptist Church, Bassett, Virginia.

A native of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, Jim began his ministry at Charleston Baptist Temple on August 1, 2016.

Ice Cream Social Supports Missions

by Rich McClure

Pastor, Parkersburg First Baptist Church (Parkersburg)

The church's annual ice cream social turned into an event to raise awareness and support for local missions. Parkersburg First Baptist Church (Parkersburg) had long enjoyed the gathering of the saints for ice cream in the fellowship hall. Humid weather prompted a suggestion the event move outside. Lawn chairs were brought by members along with yard games, to everyone's enjoyment. Live music, inflatables and a cotton candy machine were added in the following years. Then, someone suggested the ice cream social become a community event.

The next phase of development in the ice cream social included blocking off the street, enlisting vendors and partnering with a local food pantry. The social schedule was expanded to four hours. The funds that were produced from the sale of ice cream, the rental paid by vendors and tickets sold for the games were sent to the food pantry ... a needed summer boost. The event continued to grow and businesses were solicited for donations, grants were sought and the number of activities increased. A request before the city council resulted in the official naming of the event, The Parkersburg Ice Cream Social. This provided additional funding for several years from the city. With funding, the number of local missions being supported grew from one food pantry to seven organizations.

A significant gain for Parkersburg First Baptist Church has been the increase in the percentage of the congregation engaged in the social. Initially, it was the work of a handful of people. As the event grew, more people began to help. It has been "all hands on deck" in recent years and an estimated 85% of the congregation is helping in some measurable way. People from the community are also pitching in with a desire to help. The Parkersburg Ice Cream Social has become a means for raising awareness and support for missions, providing a family-friendly event for the community, and realizing our call as a church to be on mission with God.
